CLERK, U.S. DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

United States District Court
Eastern District of California

Melvyn H. Coleman,
Petitioner, vs.

No. Civ. S-96-0783 LKK PAN P
Findings and Recommendations

Board of Prison Terms, et al., Respondents.

-oOo-

Petitioner seeks a writ of habeas corpus.

In his November 14, 1997, second amended petition petitioner claims his federal due process guarantee was violated because the California Board of Prison Terms (Board) has failed to conduct a fair parole suitability hearing.

In 1974 petitioner was convicted of first degree murder, attempted murder, first degree robbery, first degree burglary and other charges. The victims, Mr. And Mrs. Siewart, returned to their home while petitioner was burglarizing it; he then

1 approached before they got out of their car and robbed and shot
2 them, killing Mr. Siewart and seriously wounding Mrs. Siewart.
3 Petitioner had a prior juvenile record.

4 Under California law, a prisoner including a convicted 5 murderer serving an indeterminate term (i.e., seven years to 6 life) is entitled to a hearing before a panel composed of members 7 of the Board to determine his suitability for parole. By 8 statute, parole at some point normally is appropriate and the 9 Board "shall set a release date unless it determines that the 10 gravity of the current convicted offense or offenses, or the 11 timing and gravity of current or past convicted offense or 12 offenses, is such that consideration of the public safety 13 requires a more lengthy period of incarceration. . . ." Cal.
14 Penal Code § 3041(b). Procedures governing suitability hearings 15 are set forth in Penal Code § 3041.5 (providing prisoners with 16 notice and an opportunity to be heard and requiring a written 17 statement of reasons if the panel refuses to set a parole date).
18 Regulations prescribe factors for the panel to consider in 19 determining whether each prisoner is suitable or unsuitable for 20 parole. 15 CAC § 2281.<sup>1</sup>

21 22 <sup>1</sup> Factors supporting a finding of unsuitability include: (1) whether the 23 prisoner's offense for which he is confined was committed in an "especially 24 heinous, atrocious or cruel manner"; (2) the prisoner's record of violence prior 25 to the offense; (3) whether the prisoner has an unstable social history; (4) 26 whether the prisoner has committed sadistic sexual offenses; (5) whether the prisoner has a lengthy history of severe mental problems related to the offense; and (6) whether the prisoner has engaged in serious misconduct in prison or jail.
Factors supporting a finding of suitability include: (1) whether the prisoner has a juvenile record; (2) whether the prisoner has experienced reasonably stable relationships with others; (3) whether the prisoner shows signs of remorse; (4)

1 Petitioner presents evidence that under Governors Wilson and 2 Davis the Board disregarded regulations ensuring fair suitability 3 hearings and instead operated under a sub rosa policy that all 4 murderers be found unsuitable for parole. The record shows that 5 between 1992 and 1998 less than one percent of the prisoners in 6 this group were released on parole. During the previous period
7 the parole rate had been about four percent. Petitioner presents 8 sworn testimony that the policy was enforced by (1) appointing 9 Board members less likely to grant parole and more willing to 10 disregard their statutory duty; (2) removing Board members more 11 likely to grant parole; (3) reviewing decisions finding a 12 prisoner suitable and setting a new hearing before a different 13 panel; (4) scheduling rescission hearings for prisoners who had 14 been granted a parole date; (5) re-hearing favorable rescission 15 proceedings and hand-picking panels to ensure the desired 16 outcome; (6) panel members agreeing upon an outcome in advance of 17 the hearing; and (7) gubernatorial reversal of favorable parole
18 decisions. See e.g., declaration of former BPT Commissioner 19 Albert Leddy (Leddy) paras. 5, 6, 8-17, 20 (attached as Ex. 17 to 20 petitioner's March 27, 2003, motion for discovery); deposition of 21 Leddy taken in In re Fortin, et al., San Diego Superior Court

22
23 whether the prisoner committed his crime as the result of significant stress in 24 his life; (5) whether the prisoner suffered from Battered Woman Syndrome when she 25 committed the crime; (6) whether the prisoner lacks any significant history of 26 violent crime; (7) whether the prisoner's present age reduces the probability of recidivism; (8) whether the prisoner has made realistic plans for release or has developed marketable skills that can be put to use on release; and (9) whether the prisoner's institutional activities indicate an enhanced ability to function within the law upon release. 15 CAC § 2281.

2 95, 97-99, 102, 106, 110, 118 & 126 (attached as Ex. 10 to 3 petitioner's March 27, 2003, motion for discovery); deposition of 4 former BPT Commissioner Edmund Tong taken in Kimble v. Cal. BPT, 5 C.D. Cal. case number CV 97-2752 at 42-43, 45-47, 71, 73, 80-82, 6 85-86, 96, 103, 105, 107 & 109 (lodged December 30, 2003).<sup>2</sup>

7 The unrefuted record shows the no-parole-for-murderers
8 policy existed and continued under Governor Davis. In In re 9 Rosencrantz, the California Supreme Court took note of evidence 10 presented in the state trial court establishing that the Board
11 held 4800 parole suitability hearings between January 1999 12 through April 2001, granting parole to 48 murderers (one 13 percent). 29 Cal. 4th 616, 685 (2003). Of those 48, the 14 governor reversed 47 of the Board's decisions and only one 15 murderer out of 4800 actually was released on parole. Id.
16 Petitioner in Rosenkrantz also submitted evidence of the 17 following interview of Governor Davis reflected in the April 9, 18 1999, edition of the Los Angeles Times: " . . . [T]he governor 19 was adamant that he believes murderers - even those with second-20 degree convictions - should serve at least a life sentence in 21 prison. [Para.] Asked whether extenuating circumstances should

22
23 <sup>2</sup> Meanwhile, the annual cost to taxpayers of conducting these "pro forma" 24 hearings is enormous, amounting to millions of dollars per year. See Exhibit 7 25 to petitioner's March 27, 2003, motion for discovery (California Legislative 26 Analyst's Office - Analysis of the 2000-01 Budget Bill for the Board of Prison Terms criticizing proposed $19 million annual budget and noting huge cost of additional incarceration resulting from no-parole policy).

1 be a factor in murder sentences, the governor was blunt: "No.
2 Zero . . . They must not have been listening when I was 3 campaigning. . . . If you take someone else's life, forget it.
4 I just think people dismiss what I said in the campaign as either 5 political hyperbole or something that I would back away from . .
6 . . . We are doing exactly what we said we were going to do.""
7 29 Cal. 4th at 684.

8 Respondent does not refute the alleged facts. Instead, 9 respondent argues that, assuming arguendo prisoners in California 10 have an interest in a parole date protected by the due process 11 clause, constitutional requirements are met so long as there is 12 "some evidence" supporting the findings petitioner is unsuitable.
13 See Oppo. at 7:20 (so long as "some evidence" standard is met, 14 "the Board decisions could not have been arbitrary.") For the 15 reasons explained, this court rejects that claim. As this court 16 previously has found, there always will be "some evidence" that 17 can be used to explain a denial or rescission under the 18 circumstances. Federal due process requires more.

19 California's parole scheme gives rise to a protected liberty 20 interest in release on parole. McQuillion v. Duncan, 306 F.3d 21 895, 902 (2002); Jancsek v. Oregon Bd. of Parole, 833 F.2d 1389, 22 1390 (9th Cir. 1987); Greenholtz v. Inmates of Nebraska Penal & 23 Correctional Complex, 442 U.S. 1 (1979); Biggs v. Terhune, 334 24
25
26

1 F.3d 910, 915 (9th Cir. 2003); In re Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal. 4th 616 2 (2003).<sup>3</sup>

3 Therefore, petitioner is entitled to the process outlined in 4 Greenholtz, viz., notice, opportunity to be heard, a statement of 5 reasons for decision, and limited right to call and cross-examine 6 witnesses. The determination that petitioner is unsuitable for 7 parole must be supported by some evidence bearing some indicia of 8 reliability.

9 These guarantees do not exhaust petitioner's right to due 10 process. The fundamental core of due process is protection 11 against arbitrary action:

12 The principal and true meaning of the phrase has never 13 been more tersely or accurately stated than by Mr.
14 Justice Johnson, in Bank of Columbia v. Okely, 17 U.S.
15 235, 4 Wheat. 235-244, 4 L.Ed. 449 [(1819)]: "As to the 16 words from Magna Charta, incorporated into the 17 Constitution of Maryland, after volumes spoken and 18 written with a view to their exposition, the good sense 19 of mankind has at last settled down to this: that they 20 were intended to secure the individual from the 21 arbitrary exercise of the powers of government, 22 unrestrained by the established principles of private 23 right and distributive justice."

19 Hurtado v. California, 110 U.S. 516, 527, (1884). "The 20 concessions of Magna Charta were wrung from the king as 21 guaranties against the oppressions and usurpations of his 22

23 <sup>3</sup> That is so because the parole statute, Penal Code § 3041, uses mandatory 24 language ("The panel or board shall set a release date unless it determines" 25 further incarceration is necessary in the interest of public safety) which 26 "creates a presumption that parole release will be granted," unless the statutorily defined determinations are made. Board of Pardons v. Allen, 482 U.S.
369, 378 (1987) (quoting Greenholtz, 442 U.S. at 12). As of 1988, by amendment of the state constitution, a parole date given can be withdrawn by the Governor under the same factors considered by the Board.

1 prerogative." Id. at 531. "The touchstone of due process is 2 protection of the individual against arbitrary action of 3 government." Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 558 (1974), 4 citing Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U.S. 114 (1889).

5 A government official's arbitrary and capricious exercise of 6 his authority violates the essence of due process, contrary to 7 centuries of Anglo-American jurisprudence. See Yick Wo v.
8 Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369 (1886) ("When we consider the nature
9 and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles 10 upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of 11 their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do 12 not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal 13 and arbitrary power."); United States v. Lee, 106 U.S. 196, 220 14 (1882) ("No man in this country is so high that he is above the 15 law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with 16 impunity. All the officers of the government from the highest to 17 the lowest, are creatures of the law and are bound to obey it.
18 It is the only supreme power in our system of government, and 19 every man who by accepting office participates in its functions 20 is only the more strongly bound to submit to that supremacy, and 21 to observe the limitations which it imposes upon the exercise of 22 the authority which it gives."); U.S. v. Nixon, 418 U.S. 683, 23 695-96 (1974) (rule of law is "historic commitment"); Accardi v.
24 O'Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260, 267-68 (1954) (Attorney General must 25 abide by regulations and cannot dictate immigration board's 26 exercise of discretion in decision on application to suspend

1 deportation; remedy is new hearing where board will exercise it's 2 discretion free from bias).

3 Concomitant to the guarantee against arbitrary and 4 capricious state action is the right to a fact-finder who has not 5 predetermined the outcome of a hearing. See Withrow v. Larkin, 6 421 U.S. 35 (1975) (a fair trial in a fair tribunal is a basic 7 requirement of due process, and this rule applies to 8 administrative agencies which adjudicate as well as to courts); 9 Edwards v. Balisok, 520 U.S. 641 (1997) (recognizing due process 10 claim based on allegations that prison disciplinary hearing 11 officer was biased and would suppress evidence of innocence); 12 Bakalis v. Golembeski, 35 F.3d 318, 326 (7th Cir. 1994) (a 13 decision-making body "that has prejudged the outcome cannot 14 render a decision that comports with due process").

15 Courts too numerous to list have recognized that the right 16 to a disinterested decision-maker, who has not prejudged the 17 case, is part of the fundamental guarantee against arbitrary and 18 capricious government conduct in the California parole context.
19 See, e.g., Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal. 4th at 677 (parole decision "must 20 reflect an individualized consideration of the specified criteria 21 and cannot be arbitrary and capricious"); In re Ramirez, 94 Cal.
22 App. 4th 549, 563 (2001) ("some evidence" standard is "only one
23 aspect of judicial review for compliance with minimum standards 24 of due process" (citing Balisok) and Board violates due process 25 if its decision is "arbitrary and capricious"); In re Minnis, 7 26 Cal. 3d 639 (1972) (blanket no-parole policy as to certain category of prisoners is illegal); In re Morrall, 102 Cal. App. 4th 280 (2003) (same). The guarantee of neutral parole officials in a suitability hearing is just as fundamental as the right to a neutral judge in a court proceeding. Compare Sellars v. Procunier, 641 F.2d 1295 (9th Cir. 1981) (holding that California parole officials, analogous to judges, are entitled to absolute immunity).

The Ninth Circuit previously has acknowledged California inmates' due process right to parole consideration by neutral decision-makers. See O'Brenski v. Maas, 915 F.2d 418, 422 (9th Cir. 1990). In that case the appellate court found that a neutral parole panel at a new hearing would reach the same outcome and so denied relief. The record in this case simply will not permit the same conclusion. The requirement of an impartial decision-maker transcends concern for diminishing the likelihood of error. As the Supreme Court clearly held in Balisok a decision made by a fact-finder who has predetermined the outcome is per se invalid -- even where there is ample ~~evidence to~~ support it. 520 U.S. at 648.

Petitioner presents a convincing case that a blanket policy against parole for murderers prevented him from obtaining a parole suitability determination made after a fair hearing. Respondent offers nothing to counter petitioner's showing.

Accordingly, the court hereby recommends that the petition for habeas corpus be granted unless, within 60 days of the district court's adoption of these recommendations, respondent

ARTHUR CRISCIONE,

ORDER

On Habeas Corpus

INTRODUCTION

Petitioner alleges that he has been denied due process of law because the Board has used standards and criteria which are unconstitutionally vague in order to find him unsuitable for parole. Alternatively, he argues that those standards, even if constitutionally sound, are nonetheless being applied in an arbitrary and meaningless fashion by the Board. He relies upon evidence that in one hundred percent of 2690 randomly chosen cases, the Board found the commitment offense to be "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel", a factor tending to show unsuitability under Title 15 §2402(c)(1).

Are the Board Criteria Unconstitutionally Vague?

Our courts have long recognized that both state and federal due process requirements dictate that the Board must apply detailed standards when evaluating whether an individual inmate is unsuitable for parole on public safety grounds. (See In re Dannenberg (2005) 34

08/12/2007 11:00

1 Cal.4th 1061 at p. 1096, footnote 16.). Those standards are found in 2 15 CCR §2402(c) (Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 1080,) and do 3 include detailed criteria to be applied by the Board when considering 4 the commitment offense:

5 (c) Circumstances Tending to Show Unsuitability. The following 6 circumstances each tend to indicate unsuitability for release.
7 These circumstances are set forth as general guidelines; the 8 importance attached to any circumstance or combination of 9 circumstances in a particular case is left to the judgment of 10 the panel. Circumstances tending to indicate unsuitability 11 include:

12 (1) Commitment Offense. The prisoner committed the offense in an 13 especially heinous, atrocious or cruel manner. The factors to be 14 considered include:

15 (A) Multiple victims were attacked, injured or killed in 16 the same or separate incidents.

17 (B) The offense was carried out in a dispassionate and 18 calculated manner, such as an execution-style murder.

19 (C) The victim was abused, defiled or mutilated during or 20 after the offense.

21 (D) The offense was carried out in a manner which 22 demonstrates an exceptionally callous disregard for human 23 suffering.

24 (E) The motive for the crime is inexplicable or very 25 trivial in relation to the offense.

26 In response to Petitioners claim that the regulations are 27 impermissibly vague, Respondent argues that while "especially 28 heinous, atrocious or cruel" might be vague in the abstract it is 29 limited by factors (A)-(E) of §2402(c)(1), and thus provides a 30 'principled basis' for distinguishing between those cases which are 31 contemplated in that section and those which are not. An examination 32 of cases involving vagueness challenges to death penalty statutes is 33 instructive here and shows that Respondent's position has merit:

34 "Our precedents make clear that a State's capital sentencing

09/12/2007 11:00

1 scheme also must genuinely narrow the class of persons eligible
2 for the death penalty. When the purpose of a statutory 3 aggravating circumstance is to enable the sentencer to 4 distinguish those who deserve capital punishment from those who 5 do not, the circumstance must provide a principled basis for 6 doing so. If the sentencer fairly could conclude that an 7 aggravating circumstance applies to every defendant eligible for 8 the death penalty, the circumstance is constitutionally infirm."
9 (Arave v. Creech (1993) 507 U.S. 463, 474, citing Maynard v.
10 Cartwright (1988) 496 U.S. 356, 364: "invalidating aggravating 11 circumstance that 'an ordinary person could honestly believe' 12 described every murder," and, Godfrey v. Georgia (1980) 446 U.S.
13 420, 428-429: "A person of ordinary sensibility could fairly 14 characterize almost every murder as 'outrageously or wantonly 15 vile, horrible and inhuman.'")

16 It cannot fairly be said that 'every murder' could be 17 categorized as "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel" under the 18 Board regulations, since the defining factors contained in 19 subdivisions (A)-(E) clearly narrow the group of cases to which it 20 applies. Although Petitioner also argues that the "vague statutory 21 language is not rendered more precise by defining it in terms or 22 synonyms of equal or greater uncertainty" (People v. Superior Court
23 (Engert) (1982) 31 Cal.3d 797, 803, Pryor v. Municipal Court (1979)
24 25 Cal.3d 238, 249. See also Walton v. Arizona (1990) 497 U.S. 639, 25 654), the factors in those subdivisions are not themselves vague or 26 uncertain. The mere fact that there may be some subjective component 27 (such as "exceptionally callous" disregard for human suffering) does 28 not render that factor unconstitutionally vague. The proper degree of definition of such factors is not susceptible of mathematical precision, but will be constitutionally sufficient if it gives meaningful guidance to the Board.

A law is void for vagueness if it "fails to provide adequate notice to those who must observe its strictures and impermissibly delegates basic policy matters to policemen, judges, and juries for resolution on an ad hoc and subjective basis, with the attendant dangers of arbitrary and discriminatory application." (People v. Rubalcava (2000) 23 Cal.4th 322, 332, quoting People ex rel. Gallo v. Acuna (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1090, 1116, quoting Grayned v. City of Rockford (1972) 408 U.S. 104, 108-109.)

09/12/2007 11:00

A review of cases expressing approval of definitions to limit the application of otherwise vague terms in death penalty statutes leads inextricably to the conclusion that the limiting factors in §2402(c) easily pass constitutional muster. An Arizona statute was upheld that provided a crime is committed in an 'especially cruel manner' when the perpetrator inflicts mental anguish or physical abuse before the victim's death," and that "mental anguish includes a victim's uncertainty as to his ultimate fate." (Walton v. Arizona (1990) 497 U.S. 639, 654.) Similarly, the court in Maynard v. Cartwright, 486 U.S. at 364-365, approved a definition that would limit Oklahoma's "especially heinous, atrocious, or cruel" aggravating circumstance to murders involving "some kind of torture or physical abuse. In Florida, the statute authorizing the death penalty if the crime is "especially heinous, atrocious, or cruel," satisfied due process concerns where it was further defined as "the conscienceless or pitiless crime which is unnecessarily torturous to the victim." State v. Dixon (1973) 283 So. 2d 1 at p. 9.

Here, the factors in subdivisions (A)-(E) provide equally clear limiting construction to the term "especially heinous, atrocious, or cruel" in §2402(c).

Has the Board Engaged in a Pattern of Arbitrary Application of the Criteria?

As previously noted, 15 CCR §2402 provides detailed criteria for determining whether a crime is "exceptionally heinous, atrocious or cruel" such that it tends to indicate unsuitability for parole. Our

09/12/2007 11:00

1 courts have held that to fit within those criteria and thus serve as 2 a basis for a finding of unsuitability, the circumstances of the 3 crime must be more aggravated or violent than the minimum necessary
4 to sustain a conviction for that offense. (In re Rosenkrantz (2002) 5 29 Cal.4th 616, 682-683.) Where that is the case, the nature of the 6 prisoner's offense, alone, can constitute a sufficient basis for 7 denying parole. (In re Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 1095.)

8 Petitioner claims that those criteria, even if constitutionally 9 sound, have been applied by the Board in an arbitrary and capricious 10 manner rendering them devoid of any meaning whatever. The role of 11 the reviewing court under these circumstances has been addressed 12 previously in the specific context of Parole Board actions:

13 "[Courts have] an obligation, however, to look beyond the facial 14 validity of a statute that is subject to possible 15 unconstitutional administration since a law though fair on its 16 face and impartial in appearance may be open to serious abuses 17 in administration and courts may be imposed upon if the 18 substantial rights of the persons charged are not adequately 19 safeguarded at every stage of the proceedings. We have 20 recognized that this court's obligation to oversee the execution 21 of the penal laws of California extends not only to judicial 22 proceedings, but also to the administration of the Indeterminate 23 Sentence Law." (In re Rodriguez (1975) 14 Cal.3d 639, 648, 24 quoting Minnesota v. Probate Court (1940) 309 U.S. 270, 277.)

25 Similarly, in In re Minnis (1972) 7 Cal.3d 639, 645, the case 26 closest on point to the present situation, the California Supreme 27 Court stated: "This court has traditionally accepted its 28 responsibility to prevent an authority vested with discretion from 29 implementing a policy which would defeat the legislative motive for 30 enacting a system of laws." Where, as here, the question is whether 31 determinations are being made in a manner that is arbitrary and 32 capricious, judicial oversight "must be extensive enough to protect

09/12/2007 11:00

1 limited right of parole applicants 'to be free from an arbitrary
2 parole decision... and to something more than mere pro-forma
3 consideration.'" (In re Ramirez (2001) 94 Cal.App.4th 549 at p. 564, 4 quoting In re Sturm (1974) 11 Cal.3d 258 at p. 268.)

5 This Court, therefore, now examines Petitioner's "as applied" 6 void for vagueness challenge.

8 The Evidence Presented

9 A similar claim to those raised here, involving allegations of 10 abuse of discretion by the Board in making parole decisions, was 11 presented to the Court of Appeal in In re Ramirez, supra. The court 12 there observed that such a "serious claim of abuse of discretion" 13 must be "adequately supported with evidence" which should be 14 "comprehensive." (Ramirez, supra, 94 Cal.App.4th at p. 564, fn. 5.)
15 The claim was rejected in that case because there was not "a 16 sufficient record to evaluate." (Ibid.) In these cases, however, 17 there is comprehensive evidence offered in support of Petitioner's 18 claims.

19 Discovery orders were issued in five different cases involving 20 life term inmates (Petitioners) who all presented identical claims.<sup>1</sup>

21
22 <sup>1</sup> This Court takes judicial notice of the several other cases currently 23 pending (Lewis #68038, Jameison #71194, Bragg #108543, Ngo #127611) which 24 raise this same issue and in which proof was presented on this same point.
25 (Evidence Code § 452(d). See specifically, in the habeas corpus context, 26 In re Vargus (2000) 83 Cal.App.4th 1125, 1134-1136, 1143, in which judicial 27 notice was taken of the evidence in four other cases and in which the court 28 noted: "Facts from other cases may assist petitioner in establishing a pattern." See generally McKell v. Washington Mutual, Inc. (2006) 142 Cal.App.4th 1457, 1491: "trial and appellate courts ... may properly take judicial notice of ... established facts from both the same case and other cases." And see AB Group v. Wartin (1997) 59 Cal.App.4th 1022, 1036:

the present [case] as they are to the others.")

1 The purpose of the discovery was to bring before the Court a 2 comprehensive compilation and examination of Board decisions in a 3 statistically significant number of cases. The Board decisions under 4 examination consisted of final decisions of the Board for life-term 5 inmates convicted of first or second degree murder and presently 6 eligible for parole. Included were all such decisions issued in 7 certain months, chosen by virtue of their proximity in time to the 8 parole denials challenged in the pending petitions. All Board 9 decisions in the months of August, September and October of 2002, 10 July, August, September, October, November, and December of 2003, 11 January and February of 2004, February of 2005, and January of 2006 12 were compiled. This resulted in a review of 2690 cases decided in a 13 total of 13 months.

14 The purpose of the review was to determine how many inmates had 15 actually been denied parole based in whole or in part on the Board's 16 finding that their commitment offense fits the criteria set forth in 17 Title 15 §2402(c)(1) as "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel." A 18 member of the research team conducting the review, Karen Rega, 19 testified that in its decisions the Board does not actually cite CCR 20 rule §2402(c), but consistently uses the specific words or phrases 21 ("verbiage from code") contained therein, so that it could easily be 22 determined when that criteria was being applied. (For example, 23 finding "multiple victims" invokes §2402(c)(1)(A); finding the crime 24 "dispassionate" "calculated" or "execution style" invokes
25 §2402(c)(1)(B); that a victim was "abused" "mutilated" or "defiled" 26 invokes §2402(c)(1)(C); a crime that is "exceptionally callous" or 27 demonstrated a "disregard for human suffering" fits criteria 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 §2402(c)(1)(D); and finding the motive for the crime "inexplicable"
2 or "trivial" invokes §2402(c)(1)(E).)

3 Petitioners provided charts, summaries, declarations, and the 4 raw data establishing the above in the cases of Lewis #68038,
5 Jameison #71194, Bragg #108543, and Ngo #127611. In this case
6 (Criscione #71614) the evidence was presented somewhat differently.
7 Both to spread the burden of the exhaustive examination, and to 8 provide a check on Petitioners' methods, this Court ordered 9 Respondent to undertake an examination of two randomly chosen months 10 in the same manner as Petitioner had been doing. Respondent complied 11 and provided periodic updates in which they continued to report that 12 at all "the relevant hearings the Board relied on the commitment 13 offense as a basis for denying parole." (See "Respondent's Final 14 Discovery Update" filed April 5, 2007.) At the evidentiary hearing 15 on this matter counsel for Respondents stipulated that "in all of 16 those cases examined [by Respondent pursuant to the Criscione 17 discovery orders] the Board relied on the commitment offense as a 18 basis for denying parole." (See pages 34-35 of the June 1, 2007, 19 evidentiary hearing transcript.)

20 The result of the initial examination was that in over 90 21 percent of cases the Board had found the commitment offense to be 22 "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel" as set forth in Title 15 23 §2402(c)(1). In the remaining 10% of cases either parole had been 24 granted, or it was unclear whether §2402(c)(1) was a reason for the 25 parole denial. For all such cases, the decisions in the prior 26 hearing for the inmate were obtained and examined. In every case, 27 the Board had determined at some point in time that every inmates 28

3        Thus, it was shown that 100% of commitment offenses reviewed by 4        the Board during the 13 months under examination were found to be 5        "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel" under Title 15 §2402(c)(1).

6 A further statistic of significance in this case is that there 7 are only 9,750 inmates total who are eligible for, and who are 8 currently receiving, parole consideration hearings as life term 9 inmates. (See "Respondent's Evidentiary Hearing Brief," at p. 4, 10 filed April 16, 2007.)

12 USE OF STATISTICS

13 In International Brotherhood of Teamsters v. United States
14 (1977) 431 U.S. 324, 338-340, the United States Supreme Court
15 reaffirmed that statistical evidence, of sufficient "proportions," 16 can be sound and compelling proof. As noted by the court in Everett 17 v. Superior Court, (2002) 104 Cal.App.4th 388, 393, and the cases cited 18 therein, "courts regularly have employed statistics to support an 19 inference of intentional discrimination."

20 More recently, the United States Supreme Court, in Miller-El v.
21 Cockrell (2003) 537 U.S. 322, 154 L.Ed.2d 931, when examining a habeas 22 petitioner's allegations that the prosecutor was illegally using his 23 peremptory challenges to exclude African-Americans from the 24 petitioner's jury, noted that "the statistical evidence alone" was 25 compelling. The high court analyzed the numbers and concluded: 26 "Happenstance is unlikely to produce this disparity." (See also 27 People v. Hofsheier (2004) 117 Cal.App.4th 438 in which "statistical 1 evidence" was noted as possibly being dispositive. And see People v.

2 Flores (2006) 144 Cal.App.4th 625 in which a statistical survey and 3 analysis, combined into an "actuarial instrument" was substantial 4 proof.)

5 A statistical compilation and examination such as has been 6 presented in these cases is entirely appropriate and sufficient 7 evidence from which to draw sound conclusions about the Board's 8 overall methods and practices.

10 THE EXPERT'S TESTIMONY

11 Petitioners provided expert testimony from Professor Mohammad 12 Kafai regarding the statistics and the conclusions that necessarily 13 follow from them. Professor Kafai is the director of the statistics 14 program at San Francisco State University, he personally teaches 15 statistics and probabilities, and it was undisputed that he was 16 qualified to give the expert testimony that he did. No evidence was 17 presented that conflicts or contradicts the testimony and conclusions
18 of Professor Kafai. By stipulation of the parties, Professor Kafai's 19 testimony was to be admissible and considered in the cases of all 20 five petitioners. (See page 35 of the June 1, 2007, evidentiary 21 hearing transcript.)

22 Professor Kafai testified that the samples in each case, which 23 consisted of two or three months of Board decisions, are 24 statistically sufficient to draw conclusions about the entire 25 population of life term inmates currently facing parole eligibility 26 hearings. Given that every inmate within the statistically 27 significant samples had his or her crime labeled "particularly 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 egregious' " or "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel" under Title 2 15 §2402(c)(1), it can be mathematically concluded that the same 3 finding has been made for every inmate in the entire population of 4 9,750. Although he testified that statisticians never like to state 5 unequivocally that something is proven to a 100% certainty, (because 6 unforeseen anomalies are always theoretically possible,) he did 7 indicate the evidence he had thus far examined came as close to that 8 conclusion as could be allowed. Not surprisingly, Professor Kafai 9 also testified that "more than 50% can't by definition constitute an 10 exception."

11 Having found the data provided to the expert to be sound this 12 Court also finds the expert's conclusions to be sound. In each of 13 the five cases before the Court over 400 inmates were randomly chosen 14 for examination. That number was statistically significant and was 15 enough for the expert to draw conclusions about the entire population 16 of 9,750 parole eligible inmates. The fact that the approximately 17 2000 inmates examined in the other cases also had their parole denied 18 based entirely or in part on the crime itself (§2402(c)(1)), both 19 corroborates and validates the expert's conclusion in each individual 20 case and also provides an overwhelming and irrefutable sample size 21 from which even a non expert can confidently draw conclusions.

22

23 DISCUSSION

24 Although the evidence establishes that the Board frequently says 25 parole is denied "first," "foremost," "primarily," or "mainly," 26 because of the commitment offense, this statement of primacy or 27 weight is not relevant to the question now before the Court.

28

09/12/2007 11:00

Petitioners acknowledge that the Board generally also cites other reasons for its decision. The question before this Court, however, is not whether the commitment offense is the primary or sole reason why parole is denied -- the question is whether the commitment offense is labeled "particularly egregious" and thus could be used, under Dannenberg, primarily or exclusively to deny parole.

The evidence proves that in a relevant and statistically significant period where the Board has considered life term offenses in the context of a parole suitability determination, every such offense has been found to be "particularly egregious" or "especially heinous, atrocious or cruel."<sup>2</sup> This evidence conclusively demonstrates that the Board completely disregards the detailed standards and criteria of §2402(c). "Especially" means particularly, or "to a distinctly greater extent or degree than is common."<sup>3</sup> (EC § 451(e).) By simple definition the term "especially" as contained in section 2402(c)(1) cannot possibly apply in 100% of cases, yet that is precisely how it has been applied by the Board. As pointed out by the Second District Court of Appeal, not every murder can be found to be "atrocious, heinous, or callous" or the equivalent without "doing

<sup>2</sup> In a single case out of the 2690 that were examined Petitioner has conceded that the Board did not invoke §2402(c)(1). This Court finds that concession to be improvidently made and the result of over caution. When announcing the decision at the initial hearing of S. Fletcher (E-10230) on 4/6/06, the commissioner did begin by stating "I don't believe this offense is particularly aggravated..." However the commissioner proceeds to describe the crime as a drug deal to which Fletcher brought a gun so "we could say there was some measure of calculation in that." The commissioner continued by observing that the reason someone would bring a gun to a drug transaction was to make sure things went according to their plan "so I guess we can say that that represents calculation and perhaps it's aggravated to that extent." As is the Board's standard practice, by using the word 'calculated' from §2402(c)(1)(b) the Board was invoking that regulation. Certainly if Mr. Fletcher had brought a habeas petition Respondent's position would be that there is 'some evidence' supporting this. The ambiguity created by the commissioner's initial statement was cleared up several pages later when he announces that "based upon the crime coupled with ..." parole was denied for four years. (See In re Burns (2006) 136 Cal.App.4th 1318, 1326, holding §2402(c)(1) criteria are necessary for a multi-year denial.)

1 violence" to the requirements of due process. (In re Lawrence (2007)
2 150 Cal.App.4th 1511, 1557.) This is precisely what has occurred 3 here, where the evidence shows that the determinations of the Board 4 in this regard are made not on the basis of detailed guidelines and 5 individualized consideration, but rather through the use of all 6 encompassing catch phrases gleaned from the regulations.

7 8 THE BOARD'S METHODS

9 Because it makes no effort to distinguish the applicability of 10 the criteria between one case and another, the Board is able to force 11 every case of murder into one or more of the categories contained in 12 §2402(c).

13 For example, if the inmate's actions result in an instant death 14 the Board finds that it was done in a "dispassionate and calculated 15 manner, such as an execution-style murder." At the same time the 16 Board finds that a murder not resulting in near instant death shows a 17 "callous disregard for human suffering" without any further analysis 18 or articulation of facts which justify that conclusion. If a knife 19 or blunt object was used, the victim was "abused, defiled, or 20 mutilated." If a gun was used the murder was performed in a 21 "dispassionate and calculated manner, such as an execution-style 22 murder." If bare hands were used to extinguish another human life 23 then the crime is "particularly heinous and atrocious."

24 Similarly, if several acts, spanning some amount of time, were 25 necessary for the murder the Board may deny parole because the inmate 26 had "opportunities to stop" but did not. However if the murder was 27 <sup>3</sup> Princeton University World Net Dictionary (2006).

28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 accomplished quickly parole will be denied because it was done in a 2 dispassionate and calculated manner and the victim never had a chance 3 to defend themselves or flee. If the crime occurred in public, or 4 with other people in the vicinity, it has been said that the inmate 5 "showed a callous disregard" or "lack of respect" for the 6 "community." However if the crime occurs when the victim is found 7 alone it could be said that the inmate's actions were aggravated 8 because the victim was isolated and more vulnerable.

9 In this manner, under the Board's cursory approach, every murder 10 has been found to fit within the unsuitability criteria. What this 11 reduces to is nothing less than a denial of parole for the very 12 reason the inmates are present before the Board - i.e. they committed 13 murder. It is circular reasoning, or in fact no reasoning at all, 14 for the Board to begin each hearing by stating the inmate is before 15 them for parole consideration, having passed the minimum eligible 16 parole date based on a murder conviction, and for the Board to then 17 conclude that parole will be denied because the inmate committed acts 18 that amount to nothing more than the minimum necessary to convict 19 them of that crime. As stated quite plainly by the Sixth District:
20 "A conviction for murder does not automatically render one unsuitable 21 for parole." (Smith, supra, 114 Cal.App.4th at p. 366, citing 22 Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th at p. 683.)

23 In summary, when every single inmate is denied parole because 24 his or her crime qualifies as a §2402(c)(1) exception to the rule 25 that a parole date shall normally be set, then the exception has 26 clearly swallowed the rule and the rule is being illegally 27 interpreted and applied. When every single life crime that the Board 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 examines is "particularly egregious" and "especially heinous, 2 atrocious or cruel" it is obvious that the Board is operating without 3 any limits and with unfettered discretion.

4 Other examples of the failure to 'connect up' the facts of the 5 individual case with the criteria and the ultimate findings abound in 6 the decisions of the reviewing courts. Some of the state cases to 7 have reversed Parole Board or Governor abuses of discretion in 8 denying parole include In re Roderick, In re Cooper, In re Lawrence, 9 In re Barker, In re Gray, In re Lee, In re Elkins, In re Weider, In 10 re Scott, In re Deluna, In re Ernest Smith, In re Mark Smith, and In 11 re Capistran.

12 When "the record provides no reasonable grounds to reject, or 13 even challenge, the findings and conclusions of the psychologist and 14 counselor concerning [the inmate's] dangerousness" the Board may not 15 do so. (In re Smith (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 343, 369.)

16 When an inmate, although only convicted of a second degree 17 murder, has been incarcerated for such time that, with custody 18 credits, he would have reached his MEPD if he had been convicted of a 19 first, the Board must point to evidence that his crime was aggravated 20 or exceptional even for a first degree murder if they are going to 21 use the crime as a basis for denying parole. (In re Weider (2006) 22 145 Cal.App.4th 570, 582-583.)<sup>4</sup>

24 <sup>4</sup> This rule, rooted in Justice Moreno's concurrence in Rosenkrantz, supra, is 25 particularly applicable in this case. Petitioner was convicted of second degree, 26 but acquitted of first degree, murder over 25 years ago. (People v. Criscione 27 (1981) 125 Cal.App.3d 275.) With his custody credits he is beyond the matrix even 28 had he been convicted of a first. In a currently pending habeas petition in which he challenges his 2007 parole denial the first reason the Board gave was the crime itself and the presiding commissioner explained: "His actions go well beyond the minimum necessary for a conviction of murder in the second degree." (Decision page 2 of 4/2/07 transcript.) For the Board to penalize the Petitioner for the fact that he was acquitted of first degree is further proof of their willfulness and

09/12/2007 11:00

1 A "petitioner's young age at the time of the offense" must be 2 considered. (In re Elkins (2006) 144 Cal.App.4th 475, 500, quoting 3 Rosenkrantz v. Marshall (C.D.Cal. 2006) 444 F. Supp. 2d 1063, 1065, 4 1085: "The reliability of the facts of the crime as a predictor for 5 his dangerousness was diminished further by his young age of 18, just 6 barely an adult. The susceptibility of juveniles to immature and 7 irresponsible behavior means their irresponsible conduct is not as 8 morally reprehensible as that of an adult.")<sup>5</sup>

9 The Board's formulaic practice of stating §2402(c)(1) phrased in 10 a conclusory fashion, and then stating "this is derived from the 11 facts" without ever linking the two together, is insufficient. (In 12 re Roderick, (2007) ____ Cal.App.4th ____ (A113370): "At minimum, the 13 Board is responsible for articulating the grounds for its findings 14 and for citing to evidence supporting those grounds." (See also In 15 re Barker (2007) 151 Cal.App.4th 346, 371, disapproving 16 "conclusorily" announced findings.)

17 After two decades, mundane "crimes have little, if any, 18 predictive value for future criminality. Simply from the passing of 19 time, [an inmate's] crimes almost 20 years ago have lost much of 20 their usefulness in foreseeing the likelihood of future offenses than 21 if he had committed them five or ten years ago." (In re Lee (2006) 22 143 Cal.App.4th 1400, 1412.) It should be noted that this rule

23 bias. The jury had a reasonable doubt that Petitioner committed first degree 24 murder, but under the Board's 'reasoning' and 'analysis' this puts him in a worse 25 position than if they had not. Had the jury convicted him of the greater offense 26 Petitioner has served so much time that he would already be having subsequent 27 parole hearings on a first and the Board would not have been able to use the 'some 28 evidence' of first degree behavior against him. As observed previously, the Board's position in this regard is "so ridiculous that simply to state it is to refute it." (Weider, supra, 145 Cal.App.4th at p. 583.)
 This point is particularly significant in the case of Mike Ngo. Mr. Ngo was only 18 at the time of his crime. The impetus behind the shooting was youth group or

1 applies with even more force when the Board is relying on any 2 criminality that occurred before the crime. In that situation, just 3 as with the crime itself, the Board must explain why such old events 4 have any relevance and especially when the inmate has spent a decade 5 as a model prisoner.

6 Murders situationally related to intimate relationships are 7 unfortunately commonplace because emotions are strongest in such 8 domestic settings. When a murder occurs because of "stress unlikely 9 to be reproduced in the future" this is a factor that affirmatively 10 points towards suitability. (In re Lawrence (2007) 150 Cal.App.4th 11 1511 and cases cited therein.)

12 "The evidence must substantiate the ultimate conclusion that the 13 prisoner's release currently poses an unreasonable risk of danger to 14 the public. It violates a prisoner's right to due process when the 15 Board or Governor attaches significance to evidence that forewarns no 16 danger to the public." (In re Tripp (2007) 150 Cal.App.4th 306, 17 313.)

18 The Board "cannot rely on the fact that the killing could have 19 been avoided to show the killing was especially brutal." (In re 20 Cooper (2007) 153 Cal.App.4th 1043, 1064.)

21 The Board's focus must be upon how the inmate "actually 22 committed his crimes" not the "incorporeal realm of legal 23 constructs." (Lee, supra, 143 Cal.App.4th at p. 1413.) This is 24 especially significant when the murder conviction is based on the 25 felony murder rule, provocative act doctrine, or accomplice liability 26 such that the inmate did not intend to kill or may not have even been 27 gang rivalries, posturing, and threats which mature adults would not have been

2 The Board has ample guidance before it in the decisions of the 3 various reviewing courts to constrain its abuse, but has failed to 4 avail itself of the opportunity to do so.

6 SEPARATION OF POWERS DOCTRINE

7 The evidence presented, as discussed above, has established a 8 void for vagueness "as applied" due process violation. That same 9 evidence also proves a separate but related Constitutional violation.
10 -- an as applied separation of powers violation.

11 The separation of powers doctrine provides "that the legislative 12 power is the power to enact statutes, the executive power is the 13 power to execute or enforce statutes, and the judicial power is the 14 power to interpret statutes and to determine their 15 constitutionality." (Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco 16 (2004) 33 Cal.4th 1055, 1068.) Because the evidence has proven the 17 Board is not executing/enforcing the legislature's statutes as 18 intended it is this Court's duty to intervene. The question here is 19 whether the Board is violating the separation of powers doctrine by 20 appropriating to itself absolute power over parole matters and 21 disregarding the limits and guidelines placed by the statute.<sup>6</sup>

22 "Government Code section 11342.2 provides: 'Whenever by the 24 caught up in.

25 "It is settled that Administrative regulations that violate acts of the 26 Legislature are void and no protestations that they are merely an exercise of 27 administrative discretion can sanctify them. They must conform to the legislative 28 will if we are to preserve an orderly system of government. Nor is the motivation of the agency relevant: It is fundamental that an administrative agency may not usurp the legislative function, no matter how altruistic its motives are." (Agricultural Labor Relations Board v. Superior Court of Tulare County (1976) 16 Cal.3d 392, 419 quoting Morris v. Williams (1967) 67 Cal.2d 733, 737, and City of San Joaquin v. State Bd. of Equalization (1970) 9 Cal.App.3d 365, 374.)

1 express or implied terms of any statute a state agency has authority 2 to adopt regulations to implement, interpret, make specific or 3 otherwise carry out the provisions of the statute, no regulation 4 adopted is valid or effective unless consistent and not in conflict 5 with the statute and reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose 6 of the statute.' Administrative regulations that alter or amend the 7 statute or enlarge or impair its scope are void and courts not only 8 may, but it is their obligation to strike down such regulations."
9 (Pulaski v. Occupational Safety & Health Stds. Bd. (1999) 75 10 Cal.App.4th 1315, 1341, citations omitted.)

11 The vice of overbroad and vague regulations such as are at issue 12 here is that they can be manipulated, or 'interpreted,' by executive 13 agencies as a source of unfettered discretion to apply the law 14 without regard to the intent of the people as expressed by the 15 legislature's enabling statutes. In short, agencies usurp unlimited 16 authority from vague regulations and become super-legislatures that 17 are unaccountable to the people. As it has sometimes been framed and 18 addressed in the case law, a vague or all encompassing standard runs 19 the risk of "violat[ing] the separation of powers doctrine by 20 'transforming every [executive decisionmaker] into a "mini-21 legislature" with the power to determine on an ad hoc basis what 22 types of behavior [satisfy their jurisdiction].'" (People v. Ellison 23 (1998) 68 Cal.App.4th 203, 211, quoting People v. Superior Court 24 (Caswell) (1988) 46 Cal.3d 381, 402.)

25 "It is concern about 'encroachment and aggrandizement,' the 26 [United States Supreme Court] reiterated, that has animated its 27 separation of powers jurisprudence. 'Accordingly, we have not 28

1 hesitated to strike down provisions of law that either accrete to a 2 single Branch powers more appropriately diffused among separate 3 Branches or that undermine the authority and independence of one or 4 another coordinate Branch.'" (Kasler v. Lockyer (2000) 23 Cal.4th
5 472, 493, quoting Mistretta v. United States (1989) 488 U.S. 361, 6 382.) This articulation of the principle speaks directly to the 7 situation at hand. The Board, by its enactment and interpretation of 8 Title 15, §2402, has appropriated to itself absolute power over 9 'lifer' matters. Overreaching beyond the letter and spirit of the 10 Penal Code provisions, Title 15, §2402(c)(1) has been interpreted by 11 the Board to supply the power to declare every crime enough to deny 12 parole forever. The fact that Title 15, §2402, has been invoked in 13 every case, but then sometime later not invoked, tends to show either 14 completely arbitrary and capricious behavior or that unwritten 15 standards are what really determine outcomes. In either event, all 16 pretenses of taking guidance from, or being limited by, the 17 legislature's statutes have been abandoned. "[I]t is an elementary 18 proposition that statutes control administrative interpretations."
19 (Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (2006) 137 Cal.App.4th 64, 78.).
20 Title 15 §2402 as applied, however, has no controls or limitations.

21 The PC § 3041(b) exception to the rule can only be invoked when 22 the "gravity of the current convicted offense or offenses, or the 23 timing and gravity of current or past convicted offense or offenses, 24 is such that consideration of the public safety requires a more
25 lengthy period of incarceration for this individual." The word
26 "gravity" is a directive for comparison just as "more lengthy"
27 indicates a deviation from the norm. While Dannenberg held there 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 does not need to be intra case comparison for the purposes of term
2 uniformity or proportionality, there necessarily has to be some sort
3 of comparison for the purposes of adhering to the legislative mandate
4 that parole is available. The Board employs no meaningful yardstick 5 in measuring parole suitability. This is a violation of the 6 separation of powers doctrine. (People v. Wright (1982) 30 Cal.3d
7 705, 712-713. And see Tarhune v. Superior Court (1998) 65
8 Cal.App.4th 864, 872-873. Compare Whitman v. Am. Trucking Ass'ns 9 (2001) 531 U.S. 457, 472, describing a delegation challenge as 10 existing when the legislature fails to lay down "an intelligible 11 principle to which the person or body authorized to act is directed 12 to conform.")

13 14 RESPONDENT'S POSITION

15 The Attorney General has suggested, without pointing to any 16 concrete examples, that it is possible that the Board, when invoking 17 the crime as a reason to deny parole, is not placing it within 18 §2402(c)(1) but instead using it as some sort of 'lesser factor' 19 which, only when combined with other unsuitability criteria, can 20 contribute to a valid parole denial. The two problems with this 21 position are, first, there is no evidentiary support for this 22 assertion, and second, it would have no impact on the constitutional 23 infirmities outlined and proven above.

24 Even if Respondent had produced evidence that the Board was 25 utilizing the crime as a 'lesser factor' which needs others to fully 26 support a parole denial, the Board would then be admitting it was 27 denying parole, in part, for the very reason that the person is 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 before the panel and eligible for parole in the first place - the 2 commitment offense. Respondent's argument suggests that a crime that 3 only qualified as the Dannenberg "minimum necessary" could still be 4 invoked as a reason for denying parole. Respondent argues that when 5 the crime is invoked 'not in the Dannenberg sense,' there must be 6 other reasons for the parole denial and the crime alone would not be 7 enough in this context. This position is inconsistent with the law 8 and fundamental logic.

9 A crime qualifies under Dannenberg when it is "particularly 10 egregious," or one where "no circumstances of the offense reasonably 11 could be considered more aggravated or violent than the minimum 12 necessary to sustain a conviction for that offense." (Dannenberg, 13 supra, 34 Cal.4th at pp. 1094-1095.) These are the only two choices.

14 If a crime consists of only the bare elements then it is not 15 aggravated and it cannot, in and of itself, serve as a basis for 16 parole denials once the inmate becomes eligible for parole. It is 17 the reason an inmate may be incarcerated initially for the equivalent 18 of 15 or 25 years, and then examined to determine rehabilitation 19 efforts when they come before the Board, but a crime that is no more 20 than the bare minimum cannot be factored into the equation pursuant 21 to PC § 3041(b) or any of the case law interpreting it.

22 In oral argument Respondent suggested a second way the 23 commitment offense can be used outside of §2402(c)(1). If for 24 example a crime had its roots in gang allegiances or rivalries and 25 the inmate continued to associate with gangs while incarcerated, then 26 an aspect of the crime, even if the crime otherwise consisted of no 27 more than the minimum elements, could be combined with other behavior 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 to support a parole denial. Similarly, if a crime was rooted in an 2 inmate's then existing drug addiction, and the Board was to point to 3 a recent 115 involving drugs, the evidence that the inmate's drug 4 issues had not been resolved would justify a parole denial even if 5 the crime itself was not aggravated. A finding that the inmate is 6 not suitable for release under these circumstances, however, is not 7 based on the facts of the commitment offense as tending to show 8 unsuitability. It is based on the conclusion that can be drawn about 9 Petitioner's lack of rehabilitation or change since the offense, and 10 thus, his present dangerousness.

11 Respondent has not demonstrated any flaws in Petitioner's 12 methodology or analysis, nor provided any actual evidence of the 13 crime being invoked other than pursuant to §2402(c)(1). Drawing 14 conclusions from the Board's direct statements, or its precise 15 recitations of the §2402(c)(1) language, logically indicates an 16 invocation of §2402(c)(1), and Respondent's suggestion otherwise is 17 insupportable.

18 19 THE QUESTION OF BIAS

20 Because the issue has been squarely presented, and strenuously 21 argued by Petitioners, this Court is obligated to rule on the charge 22 that the Board's actions prove an overriding bias and deliberate 23 corruption of their lawful duties.

24 In the discrimination and bias case of USPS Bd. of Governors v.
25 Aikens (1983) 460 U.S. 711, the United States Supreme Court 26 acknowledged "there will seldom be 'eyewitness' testimony as to the 27 [] mental processes" of the allegedly biased decisionmaker. Instead,

28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 an examination of other cases for trends or patterns can provide the 2 necessary circumstantial evidence. (See Aikens, supra, at footnote 3 2.) Reaffirming that such circumstantial evidence will be sufficient 4 the Court stated: "The law often obliges finders of fact to inquire 5 into a person's state of mind. As Lord Justice Bowen said in 6 treating this problem in an action for misrepresentation nearly a 7 century ago, 'The state of a man's mind is as much a fact as the 8 state of his digestion. It is true that it is very difficult to 9 prove what the state of a man's mind at a particular time is, but if 10 it can be ascertained it is as much a fact as anything else.'" 11 (Aikens, at pp. 716-717, quoting Edgington v. Fitzmaurice (1885) 29 12 Ch. Div. 459, 483.)<sup>7</sup>

13 The discovery in these cases was granted in part due to the 14 Petitioners' prima facie showing of bias and the necessity that it be 15 "adequately supported with evidence" if such evidence is available.
16 (Ramirez, supra, 94 Cal.App.4th at p. 564, fn. 3. See also Nasha v.
17 City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal.App.4th 470, 483: "A party seeking 18 to show bias or prejudice on the part of an administrative decision 19 maker is required to prove the same 'with concrete facts.'" And see 20 State Water Resources Control Bd. Cases (2006) 136 Cal.App.4th 674, 21 841: "The challenge to the fairness of the adjudicator must set forth 22 concrete facts demonstrating bias or prejudice." See also Hobson v.

23
24 <sup>7</sup> As occurred in Aikens, supra, and as suggested in prior orders of this Court, 25 Respondent should have provided direct evidence from the decisionmakers. While the 26 fact that a Defendant does not explain his or her actions cannot be held against 27 him, (Griffin v. California (1965) 380 U.S. 609, Doyle v. Ohio (1976) 426 U.S.
28 610,) it is appropriate to give some weight to the consideration that the Board has failed to offer any direct evidence or explanation on its own behalf. While the case of Hornung v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal.App.4th 1095 stands for the proposition that Petitioner may not inquire into the Board members mental processes, Respondent is not precluded from offering such direct evidence if they were able to testify as to their good faith and conscientious efforts.

09/12/2007 11:00

1 Hansen (1967) 269 F.Supp. 401, 502, the watershed Washington D.C.
2 school desegregation case in which the court determined from a 3 statistical and factual analysis that racial bias was influencing 4 policy.)

5 In the case of People v. Adams (2004) 115 Cal.App.4th 243, 255, 6 a similar claim of biased decision making was asserted and it was 7 rejected because, although the defendant clearly articulated it, "he 8 has not demonstrated it. Therefore, he has failed to bear his burden 9 of showing a constitutional violation as a demonstrable reality, not 10 mere speculation." In the present cases Petitioners have provided 11 overwhelming concrete evidence. It is difficult to believe that the 12 Board's universal application of §2402(c) (1) has been an inadvertent 13 mistake or oversight on their part. It is hard to credit the Board's 14 position that it does not know its own patterns and practices reveal 15 a complete lack of standards or constraints on their power.
16 Respondent's protestations ring hollow, and it seems a statistical 17 impossibility, that the Board's use of "detailed" criteria in such a 18 fashion that they are rendered meaningless is a result of good faith 19 efforts on their part. That every murder is "especially heinous, 20 atrocious or cruel," and can therefore be an exception to the rule 21 that a parole date should be set, does not seem to be an accident on 22 their part.

23 Although no court has thus far agreed with the accusation that 24 the Board approaches its duties with a predetermination and a bias, 25 no court has previously been presented the comprehensive evidence 26 outlined herein. While this Court does not turn a blind eye to the 27 reasonable conclusion that the Board's unconstitutional practices are 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 willful, there is another possibility. The pattern of errors
2 demonstrated by the discovery in this case, and the continuously 3 growing body of Court of Appeal opinions finding consistent and 4 persistent abuse of discretion, may instead be caused by the fact 5 that the Board is simply overworked and substantively untrained. The 6 impossibility of the blanket applicability of §2402(c)(1) may be only 7 the result of sloppy preparation and inadvertent carelessness.

8 The Board must first be given an opportunity to comply with the 9 necessary remedy provided by this court before it is possible to 10 enter a finding of conscious bias and illegal sub rosa policy. To do 11 otherwise would ignore the complexities and magnitude of the largely 12 discretionary duties with which that Board is vested.

14 CONCLUSION

15 The conclusive nature of the proof in this case, and the 16 suggestion of institutional bias do not preclude formulation of an 17 remedy which will guarantee adequate restrictions on, and guidance 18 for, the Board's exercise of discretion in making parole suitability 19 determinations. The Board can be made to lawfully perform its duties 20 if given explicit instructions.

21 As noted supra, a reason the proof in this case irrefutably 22 establishes constitutional violations is because the Board does not, 23 in actual fact, operate within the limiting construction of the 24 regulations. The Board's expansive interpretation allows it to 25 operate without any true standards. Although numerous rulings of 26 both state and federal courts of appeal have invalidated the Board's 27 application of the §2402(c) criteria to particular facts, the Board

28

09/12/2007 11:00 [REDACTED]

1 does not take guidance from these binding precedents and ignores them
2 for all other purposes. In the most recent of these cases, In re
3 Roderick, (2007) ___ Cal.App.4th ___ (A113370) the First District 4 held four of five §2402 factors "found" by the Board to be 5 unsupported by any evidence. At footnote 14 the court took the time
6 to criticize the Board for its repeated use of a "stock phrase" 7 "generically across the state." The court also clarified that "at 8 minimum, the Board is responsible for articulating the grounds for 9 its findings and for citing to evidence supporting those grounds."

10 There is nothing in the evidence presented that would allow any 11 conclusion but that, without intervention of the Courts, the Board 12 will ignore the lessons of these rulings in the future and continue 13 to employ its formulaic approach of citing a criteria from 14 §2402(c)(1), repeating the facts of the crime, but never 15 demonstrating a logical connection between the two. This is the 16 core problem with the Board's methodology -- they provide no 17 explanation or rationale for the findings regarding the crime itself.

18 This practice results in violence to the requirements of due 19 process and individualized consideration which are paramount to the 20 appropriate exercise of its broad discretion.

21 The only solution is one that compels the Board to identify the 22 logical connection between the facts upon which it relies and the 23 specific criteria found to apply in the individual case. For 24 example, the Board often finds that an inmate's motive is "trivial" 25 without ever suggesting why, on these facts, that motive is not just 26 as trivial as the motive behind any other murder. What motive is not 27 trivial? By any definition "trivial" is a word of comparison and 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 only has meaning when there can be examples that are not "trivial."

2 Similarly, although the Sixth District made it plain four years 3 ago that "all [1] murders by definition involve some callousness," (In 4 re Smith (2003) 114 Cal.App.4th 343, 346,) the Board has continued to 5 deny countless paroles labeling the crime "callous" without ever 6 suggesting what crime would not qualify as "callous" and without 7 consistently explaining why the individual case before it 8 demonstrates "exceptional" callousness.

9 Respondent has consistently refused to suggest what possible
10 instances of murder would not fit the Board's amorphous application 11 of the §2402 criteria. Citing Dannenberg, Respondent insists such 12 comparative analysis is unnecessary. Respondent fundamentally 13 misunderstands the Dannenberg holding.

14 The PC § 3041(b) exception to the rule can only be invoked when 15 the "gravity of the current convicted offense or offenses, or the 16 timing and gravity of current or past convicted offense or offenses, 17 is such that consideration of the public safety requires a more
18 lengthy period of incarceration for this individual." The word
19 "gravity" is a directive for comparison just as "more lengthy"
20 indicates a deviation from the norm. While Dannenberg held there
21 does not need to be intra case comparison for the purposes of term
22 uniformity or proportionality, there necessarily has to be some sort 23 of comparison for the purposes of adhering to the legislative mandate 24 that parole is available. This is implicit in §2402 because the 25 qualifier "especially," in "especially heinous atrocious or cruel," 26 requires that some form of comparison be made. While the original 27 drafters of §2402 seemed to have recognized this fact, the ongoing 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 | conduct of the Board has completely ignored it, and this is the 2 | essence of the due process violation Petitioners have asserted.

3 | As noted in his dissent in the recent case of In re Roderick,
4 | supra, Justice Sepulveda would have deferred to the Board's
5 | 'exercise' of discretion because "Board members have both training
6 | and vast experience in this field. They conduct literally thousands
7 | of parole suitability hearings each year. The Board therefore has 8 | the opportunity to evaluate the egregiousness of the facts of a great
9 | number of commitment offenses. ... The Board's training and 10 | experience in evaluating these circumstances far exceeds that of 11 | most, if not all, judges." The evidence in this case, however,
12 | suggests a flaw in granting such deference. Since the Board
13 | continues to place every murder in the category of offenses "tending
14 | to show unsuitability," something is certainly wrong. Since the 15 | Board's vast experience is undeniable, the problem must be in the 16 | Board's training and understanding of the distinguishing features of 17 | the guidelines and criteria. Although Justice Sepulveda presumes
18 | that Board members receive substantive training, there is no evidence
19 | before this court to suggest that it does, and substantial
20 | circumstantial evidence to suggest that it does not.

21 | In the vast numbers of Santa Clara County cases reviewed by this
22 | Court, the Board's formulaic decisions regarding the commitment
23 | offense do not contain any explanation or thoughtful reasoning.
24 | Instead, the Board's conclusionary invocation of words from 25 | §2402(c)(1) is linked to a repetition of the facts from the Board
26 | report by the stock phrase: "These conclusions are drawn from the 27 | statement of facts wherein ..." Thereafter the inmate files a habeas

1 corpus petition and Respondent, after requesting an extension of 2 time, files a boilerplate reply asserting the Board's power is 3 "great" and "almost unlimited" and thus any "modicum" of evidence 4 suffices. Respondent does not cite or distinguish the expanding body 5 of case law that is often directly on point as to specific findings 6 made. Thereafter, if the writ is granted, the Board is directed to 7 conduct a new hearing "in compliance with due process" and that order 8 is appealed by Respondent. On appeal the order is usually upheld 9 with modifications and in the end, after countless hours of attorney 10 and judicial time, the Board conducts a new two hour hearing at which 11 they abuse their discretion and violate due process in some different 12 way. ~~XX~~

13 This system is malfunctioning and must be repaired. The 14 solution must begin with the source of the problem. The Board must 15 make efforts to comply with due process in the first instance. The 16 case law published over the last five years provides ample and 17 sufficient guidelines and must be followed. Although the Board 18 methods suggest it believes this to be optional, it is not.

19 20 THE REMEDY

21 Thus, it is the order of this Court that the Board develop, 22 submit for approval, and then institute a training policy for its 23 members based on the current and expanding body of published state, 24 and federal, case law reviewing parole suitability decisions, and 25 specifically the application of §2402 criteria. In addition to 26 developing guidelines and further criteria for the substantive 27 application of §2402 the Board must develop rules, policies and 28

09/12/2007 11:00

1 procedures to ensure that the substantive guidelines are followed.

2 This Court finds its authority to impose this remedy to flow 3 from the fundamental principles of judicial review announced over two 4 centuries ago in Marbury v. Madison (1803) 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 137.
5 Citing that landmark case, the California Supreme Court has 6 recognized "Under time-honored principles of the common law, these 7 incidents of the parole applicant's right to 'due consideration' 8 cannot exist in any practical sense unless there also exists a remedy 9 against their abrogation." (In re Sturm (1974) 11 Cal.3d 258, 268.)

10 In Sturm the court directed that the Board modify its rules and 11 procedures so that thereafter "The Authority will be required [,] 12 commencing with the finality of this opinion, to support all its 13 denials of parole with a written, definitive statement of its reasons 14 therefor and to communicate such statement to the inmate concerned."
15 (Sturm at p. 273.)

16 Similarly, in the case of Minnis, supra, the California Supreme 17 Court held the Board's policy of categorically denying parole to drug 18 dealers was illegal. Based on its analysis the court there was 19 clearly prepared to order that Board to modify its rules and 20 procedures however such was unnecessary because the Board 21 "voluntarily rescinded" the illegal policy. While the remedy in this 22 case is of greater scope than that necessary in either Sturm or 23 Minnis, supra, so too has been the showing of a systematic abuse of 24 discretion and distortion of process.

25 The most recent case to address the court's roles and duties in 26 overseeing the parole suitability process has been In re Rosenkrantz, 27 supra, 29 Cal.4th 616. In that case the court explained that

1 judicial review of a Governor's parole determination comports with, 2 and indeed furthurs, separation of powers principles because the 3 courts are not exercising "complete power" over the executive branch 4 and do not "defeat or materially impair" the appropriate exercise or 5 scope of executive duties. (Rosenkrantz at p. 662.) Citing Strum, 6 supra, the court reaffirmed that a life term inmate's "due process 7 rights cannot exist in any practical sense without a remedy against 8 its abrogation." (Rosenkrantz at p. 664.)

9 The Rosenkrantz court also put forth what it believed was an 10 extreme example but which, unfortunately, has been shown to exist in 11 this case. The court stated: "In the present context, for example, 12 judicial review could prevent a Governor from usurping the 13 legislative power, in the event a Governor failed to observe the 14 constitutionally specified limitations upon the parole review 15 authority imposed by the voters and the Legislature." This is 16 exactly what the evidence in this case has proven. As noted above 17 the Board has arrogated to itself absolute authority, despite 18 legislative limitations and presumptions, through the mechanism of a 19 vague and all inclusive, and thus truly meaningless, application of 20 standards. The remedy this Court is imposing is narrowly tailored to 21 redress this constitutional violation.

22 The consequence of the Board's actions (of giving § 2402(c)(1) 23 such a broadly all encompassing and universal application) is that 24 they have unwittingly invalidated the basis of the California Supreme 25 Court's holding in Dannenberg. The reason the four justice majority 26 in Dannenberg upheld the Board's standard operating procedures in the 27 face of the Court of Appeal and dissent position is because "the

1 Board must apply detailed standards when evaluating whether an 2 individual inmate is unsuitable for parole on public safety grounds."
3 (Dannenberg at p. 1096, footnote 16. See also page 1080: "the 4 regulations do set detailed standards and criteria for determining 5 whether a murderer with an indeterminate life sentence is suitable 6 for parole.") However, Petitioners in these cases have proven that 7 there are no "detailed standards" at all. Instead the Board has 8 systematically reduced the "detailed standards" to empty words. The 9 remedy this Court orders, that there truly be "detailed standards," 10 requires the promulgation of further rules and procedures to 11 constrain and guide the Board's powers. This remedy differs in 12 specifics, but not in kind, from what courts have previously imposed 13 and have always had the power to impose.

14 The Board must fashion a training program and further rules, 15 standards and regulations based on the opinions and decisions of the 16 state and federal court cases which provide a limiting construction 17 to the criteria which are applied.<sup>9</sup> The Board must also make 18 provisions for the continuing education of its commissioners as new 19 case law is published and becomes binding authority. This Court will 20 not, at this point, outline the requirements and lessons to be taken 21 from the above cases. It is the Board's duty, in the first instance 22 to undertake this task. The training program, and associated rules 23 and regulations, shall be served and submitted to this Court, in 24

25 <sup>9</sup>While the showing and analysis in this case was limited to § 2402(c)(1), the 26 conclusions that the evidence compelled, that the Board has been carelessly 27 distorting and misapplying the regulations, is not so limited. Accordingly, the 28 training program that is necessary for the Board can not reasonably be limited to just § 2402(c)(1). Thus, to the extent case law recognizes, clarifies and establishes remedies for other due process violations they must also be incorporated into the necessary rules and training the Board is required to abide by.

1 writing, within 90 days. Counsel for Petitioners, and any other 2 interested parties, may submit briefs or comments within 30 days
3 thereafter. After receipt and review of the materials this Court 4 will finalize the training program, and associated rules, and the 5 Petitioners in these cases shall receive a new hearing before a Board 6 that does not operate with the unfettered discretion and caprice 7 demonstrated by the evidence here presented.

9 For the above reasons the habeas corpus petition is granted and 10 it is hereby ordered that Petitioner be provide a new hearing which 11 shall comply with due process as outlined above. Respondent shall 12 provide weekly updates to this Court on the progress of its 13 development of the new rules and regulations outlined above.
